

THE MORNING APPEAL.

SATURDAY.....JUNE 8

Denies the Report.

Day before yesterday it was reported that Wm. Pickler had married Flo Stewart in order to prevent her testifying against him relative to the bullion found in his yard.

He authorized the APPEAL to state that no such marriage had taken place or ever would take place.

"It is true," he said "that she is living at my house again, but we are not married nor do we expect to be. You can state that in the APPEAL. All I am asking her to do is to tell the truth about the bullion as she knows it, and I am not seeking to place her in a position where she cannot testify."

A Good Suggestion.

Here is a suggestion from the Bakersfield Californian which should be remembered by irrigation farmers:

"Trees and vines which are irrigated frequently and with small quantities of water develop a tendency to keep their roots close to the surface, and in order to keep the plants in good condition frequent irrigation becomes essential. If the water be applied at wide intervals and in great abundance so that the soil becomes saturated to a great depth, the roots are obliged to go downward in the search for moisture, and the result is a tree or vine of great drought-resisting power. The same is true of alfalfa."

Shooting at Kennedy.

Word reached here yesterday from Winnemucca of a fatal shooting affray at the Kennedy mining camp, 60 miles south of here. W. T. Jenkins, a prominent mining man and sheep owner, shot and probably fatally wounded C. H. McIntosh. The men had a dispute over the ownership of some tailings worked in the Jenkins mill. McIntosh is in a dying condition with a bullet wound over his heart, and Jenkins is under arrest. Some years ago Jenkins shot and killed a cattleman named Dean in Eureka county.

Sacramento will probably have the most novel Fourth of July celebration in the State. It is to be an A. P. A. celebration. Whether it will be the most successful is another question.—Stockton Mail.

The widow of John Brown, whose soul "goes marching on," has lived for several years in a cabin among the redwoods of the Sierra Azusa Mountains, fifty miles south of San Francisco.

Oscar Wilde is not insane, but is at work on the tread mill. How he must recall that line from Shakespeare: "Dwn, down, thou climbing sorrow."

Mr. G. E. Bradley, late of the Mint, will take charge of the Phoenix House, in Reno, next week and run it as a first-class family hotel.

A San Francisco paper speaking of Bill Pickler's experience of the past few days, says: "Mr. Pickler had an eventful week."

A church in Chicago has fired its pastor because he had a habit of going into his pulpit with his hands in his pockets.

It is believed in Washington that the Treasury deficit at the end of the present fiscal year will be $44,000,000.

More novelties in the grocery line at Charlie Kelly's than you ever saw there before.

The Wilson mill at Pine Grove is now crushing ore steadily.

Gov. Stone of Missouri comes out red hot for silver.

John G. Fox is now selling all kinds of fishing tackle at greatly reduced rates. If you want to catch fish get good tackle.

Ice Cream Soda.

Steinmetz's soda fountain is doing a rushing and sizzling business. The cream he sells is pure as well as the crushed fruit juices. When you combine the two with the cold and the fizz you think the Heavenly choir is marching down your throat.

Pasturage.

John Sweeney is now prepared to take a number of horses and dry cows to pasture at $1 per month.

HENEY TO RETURN.

Providing his Bail is Low Enough.

Yesterday Mrs. Heney went before Commissioner Edwards and made an affidavit relative to her husband and said that she was ready to have him come to Carson and surrender himself provided his bail would be fixed at a reasonable limit. She said she would be able to raise 5,000 dollars bail.

Commissioners Edwards listened to the proposition and Wm. Woodburn, Heney's Attorney who accompanied her said he was willing to take the ban of secrecy off the telegraph office and give the Government access to his dispatches. He then showed dispatches from Heney dated Hotel Vendome, Leadville, Colorado. For the past two weeks letters and dispatches had been passing between the attorney and his client, in which the attorney advised Heney to come home and surrender himself. The Commissioner after consulting the representatives of the Government declined to accept the proposition and Heney was telegraphed to by his attorney advising him of the situation.

The document read as follows: To T. J. Edwards, Commissioner of the U. S. Circuit Court, Ninth Circuit, District of Nevada.

My husband, James H. Heney, is willing and anxious to appear before you and answer any charges that may be pending against him, but is also desirous of avoiding confinement in jail pending preliminary examination or trial. He can give bail in the sum of five thousand dollars, but probably no more. If you will fix his bail in the sum of five thousand dollars he will voluntarily appear before you and submit to any order which you may make concerning any charge pending against him before you, if permitted to do so by the officers and Secret Agents of the Government.

Mrs. JAMES HENEY.

Wife of James H. Heney.

I hereby certify that the above proposition is made and submitted in good faith.

W. WOODBURN,

Attorney for James H. Heney, Mrs. Heney and Wm. Woodburn both appeared before Commissioner Edwards and attached their signatures to the document.

A Detectives Work.

Many people labor under the impression that a U. S. Government detective has a soft snap at big pay and nothing to do. Recently the writer heard an old gentleman remark:

"I don't see as that man Grant is doing much. I asked him the other day what he could tell me about the Mint shortage and he didn't seem able to tell me anything."

The speaker could hardly realize that Grant might know something about the case that he wasn't telling anybody. Every day a U. S. detective has to mail a report to his chief, of everything he has done during the day and all conversations he has had about the case he is working.

The U. S. Government never gives up hunting a man. The detective who is put on his trail draws his money each month and keeps hunting. Recently a counterfeiter was captured who had been a fugitive for eight years. One man had been on his trail all the while.

A man remarked recently: "All a Government detective ever does is to look mysterious and draw his pay."

"See if you can draw pay from the Government by looking mysterious," was the reply, and the other fellow at once began to wear a more thoughtful aspect.

The Kind That Suit 'Em.

A White Pine Silver man writing to General Beatty says in a private letter: There are a few men here of the Wall Street brand, but they won't be in it next year. Send me some more Carson Appeals, that's the kind of a 16 to 1 paper that suits the boys in this balliwick.

Silver Anniversary.

Night before last a number of friends surprised Dr. Guinan and wife by raiding the house and celebrating their silver wedding.

Munsey's Magazine contains a sensational story to the effect that Marshal Ney was not executed. The soldiers fired over his head. He feigned death and escaped to America where he taught school for years. On his death bed he admitted he was the famous Marshal of France. On one occasion he was recognized by some of his former soldiers. The coffin supposed to contain the remains of Marshal Ney was opened recently and found to be empty.

There is no chance for a fight on the money question among the Illinois Democrats. They are all solid for the white metal.

AFTER A LOST HORSE

Doc. Benton in the Role of a Sleuth Hound.

On Monday last a well dressed man called at Benton's stable and hired a horse and buggy to go to Virginia City. He did not return that day, and on Tuesday Benton telegraphed to a stable keeper there for information. The reply was that the man and horse had started for Reno at 4 p. m. Next day Benton got word from Reno that the man had started for Verdi. Benton then took the train and started after the fugitive. Yesterday a dispatch came from Fowler dated Sierra-ville to the effect that he was on his way home (a la Heney) with the horse. The boys at the stable think that he realized that Benton was on his trail and so he wired that he was coming home as the easiest way out of the scrape.

The Top-Heavy Colima

The survivors of the Colima tell the following story of the wreck:

The Colima foundered at 11 a. m. The storm commenced the previous night and continued all day. The Colima refused to obey her helm. She got in the trough of the sea and being top-heavy, she capsized.

The Captain was drowned at his post. N. boats were lowered, the disaster occurring too suddenly. Those picked up in the boat had managed to get into the boat, which floated free from the ship while the passengers were clinging to pieces of timber and bits of wreckage.

The passengers say that while C. H. Cushing and others were on the raft a sailor got a barrel of claret which he began drinking. To save himself Cushing was obliged to push the sailor overboard. Cushing neither denied or affirmed this.

The passengers believe that no others were saved except those already accounted for.

On account of the storm the women and children were in their staterooms and were drowned before they could get on deck.

Auction Sale Off.

The auction sale of furniture, which was to take place at the residence of G. R. Bradley is off, it having been disposed of at private sale.

While waiting for the ceremonies at General Grant's tomb, Governor McKinley placed his hat in a chair, and ex-President Harrison inadvertently sat on it and crushed it. To the superstitious this might seem an evil omen for the Governor's Presidential aspirations.

The Hawaiian Islands may be annexed to the United States some day, but not so long as Mr. Cleveland is President. They are too far West for him, his views not being broad enough to take in anything west of the Mississippi.—Salt Lake Tribune.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration in San Francisco have decided that no flag except the stars and stripes shall be permitted to be carried in processions on that day.

Pat Collins, Antonio Garcia and Antony Azoff were hung at San Quentin, Cal., yesterday. All died game, etc. Hanging isn't played out in California.
